Mr Jake Schaefer, a town ward, had a narrow escape from being burnt out early Saturday morning. Having put on a good fire, and gone to sleep, he was awakened by hearing wood cracking, and found his roof afire. Jake wasn't feeling very well, but succeeded in climbing on the roof with an armful of snow and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. Jake carries no insurance on his furniture.

On returning to the sleigh the owner was annoyed to find the stuff had frozen and burst the container, making a total loss with no insurance.
